Overview

After reviewing all the available information on Olive Leaf Extract, one comes away with the impression that the regular use of Olive Leaf Extract can be a simple but very effective dietary supplement that is used to strengthen the immune system in order to better combat the many ailments that come our way. The end result is better health, a feeling of well-being and more energy, from using nature's natural antibiotic. Fortunately, the large drug companies cannot genetically alter the oleuropein in order to patent it because of the way it works in the body, any attempt to change its physical structure neutralises the effect of the product.

How does Olive Leaf Extract Work?

Humans have an elaborate immune system. That system acts as a coat of armor to protect us from the billions of pathogenic (disease/creating) organisms in our environment and that enter the body through breathing, eating, drinking and cuts in the skin. When the immune system is functioning at the peak of efficiency, these microorganisms can be present in one's body but they have little effect. The ingredients in Olive Leaf Extract support and boost the immune system, interfering with the pathogens' amino acid properties. This prevents the pathogens from reproducing and creating more microbes within the body.
